

2025 Portfolio

Over the past two years I've traveled across the Great Plains, Badlands, deserts, and mountain ranges of the American West – drawn by the ever-changing dance of light across the landscape. This portfolio of 15 black and white photographs, each one a moment of quiet discovery: from spring storms sweeping across ancient prairies to the first light breaking over the Sierra Nevada.

These images are more than documents; they are personal reflections – an attempt to share not just what I witnessed, but what I was felt standing in those wild, open places. Together, they form a tribute to the beauty, fragility, and endurance of these remarkable places.

I invite you to explore this collection with me. May it inspire a deeper appreciation for the beauty and fragility of these places, and a renewed commitment to protect the landscapes that shape our stories—and our sense of wonder.
